This political ad does not identifying the who is responsible for this advertisement. It clearly takes a position against a candidate for a federal office in a primary election.

Please feel free to contact me on this matter.

There are many things that Rose Izzo and her husband / campaign manager / treasurer, Kevin Izzo, won't tell us.

Next time you see Rose or Kevin, here are a few things you can ask about:

1. Where did Rose Izzo go to school?

"Rose then attended Delaware County Community College, where she graduated in 2003 with an associate degree in behavioral science-sociology. On the stump and on her campaign website, Izzo has said she has degrees in psychology and communications." - News Journal 6/24/2010

"[Kevin Izzo] would not say where she earned her psychology and communications degrees." - News Journal 7/6/2010

2. Where did Rose Izzo work?

"Kevin Izzo declined to name the Fortune 500 company he says his wife worked for before resigning to run for Congress." - News Journal 7/6/2010

3. Why did Kevin Baltuskonis take Rose Izzo's last name?

"The couple met in Wildwood, N.J., he said, and she soon moved from Brooklyn to Delaware County, Pa., where he had grown up. When they married in 2000, Kevin took her last name, dropping his -- Baltuskonis." - News Journal 6/24/2010

Kevin Baltuskonis unsuccessfully sued his former employee (US Airways) after they fired him for missing work and then altering the doctor's note. Click here to read the Memorandum and Order.

4. Rose Izzo ran for office in Pennsylvania as a Democrat?

In 2004 she won the Democratic primary for PA State House in district 163 (she was a write-in candidate - no opponent). In the general election, she lost to the Republican, Rep. Micozzie, 61% to 39%.

In a May 2005 Democratic Primary for Delaware County (PA) County Council, Rose came in 3rd in a 4-way race.

In 2006, she became a Republican and ran in the May 2006 primary for PA State Senate. She lost 69% to 31%.

In 2007, she ran for County Council again (but this time as a Republican). She came in 6th in a 6-way race. Top three got elected - they were endorsed by the Philadelphia Inquirer (Izzo was not).

5. What is this New York court case in 2008?

According to a complaint filed in the US District Court in New York, Vincent DeGioia of Brooklyn claims his niece Rose Izzo abused the power of attorney he gave her. The complaint also names Kevin Izzo (aka Kevin Baltuskonis) and Rose's daughter (from Rose's previous relationship). The Defendants allegedly conspired to steal more than one million dollars from Mr. DeGioia. The suit was settled in 2010, and the 7/6/2010 News Journal article reported "the Izzos deny any wrongdoing".

The Stipulation of Settlement by Judge Townes orders Sovereign Bank and TD Bank to transfer just over $230,000 from Izzo's bank accounts to DeGioia's attorney as well as the return of DeGioia's savings bonds after the removal of Rose's daughter's name.

6. Rose Izzo moved to Delaware in 2008 but didn't vote until 2010?

Rose and Kevin bought a house in Delaware on 2/11/2008. Both registered to vote in Delaware on 10/15/2008. Both did NOT vote in the 2008 election.

Rose Izzo is currently all about "Repealing Obamacare" but couldn't get out to vote against Obama in 2008. Her first vote in Delaware was the Sept 2010 primary.

7. What's up with the "Whammy Shammy"?

In an effort to cash in on the orange reusable rag fad (remember the ShamWow?), Rose and Kevin filed for a trademark on "Whammy Shammy" on 7/4/2009. Looks like the website and eBay account they had to sell these rags have expired. Hopefully they still have a few cases of product left over so they can wipe up the mess.

Here is Kevin Izzo doing his best Billy Mays impression in their 2009 Whammy Shammy™ infomercial:
